Johnson Shoe Store Goes to Sam Harris

"It's an ill wind that blows no one good" has proven true again. And the Florida hurricane has brought Sam Harris to sunny California and Torrance.

Mr. Harris was the successful bidder for the D. M. Johnson shoe store stock at the Los Angeles Wholesale Board of Trade sale on Tuesday of this week. He stated this morning that he secured the entire stock at 40 cents on the dollar, and would dispose of the stock to local people at about half price. The disposal sale will open Friday morning, according to the advertisement printed on another page of this issue.

The stock consists of men's, women's and children's shoes, and the sale will be held at the former Johnson store, 1501 Cabrillo avenue.

OBSERVATIONS

how to make friends of business associates and subordinates and his bosses, who uses his ability to the utmost and is not lazy, can get farther in American life than in the life of any other nation on earth in any time of history.

Bassett walked with kings, but never lost the common touch. No chasm of social standing was too wide for his inherent good-fellowship to bridge.

And once more from this trait a lesson: the man who climbs the ladder of worldly success, but who loses the common touch, who develops snobbery as he acquires wealth, is a dismal failure.

provisions from the Dominguez Land Corporation to that company, but that they apparently held to the theory that the matter of such crossings was subject to the regulatory powers of the railroad commission and the studies of the county grade crossing committee, to which their engineering department had referred the question. Mr. Leonard's deductions from the interview were to the effect that the city would ultimately acquire such crossings as it desired, but that there would apparently be a delay in obtaining same.

Buy a wrist watch that you can trust

When you buy a wrist watch, you want it to be as serviceable as it is beautiful. Otherwise, you will wish that you had bought none at all.

Naturally, then, you will spend enough money to secure a timepiece of real quality. But even so, how can you be sure beyond a doubt that the one you choose will make good?

First, look for a reliable name on the dial. That assures you of a thoroughly dependable movement.

Second, see that the case is stamped with the name of a manufacturer of unquestioned prestige and reputation.

The watches you examine in our store will satisfy you in both these respects. Otherwise we could not confirm the makers' guarantees with our own.

When you buy here, you buy a watch that you can trust.
